How a day goes

Three moments. Everything else finds you.

First thing

- Open Rates. Clients have said yes; these campaigns cannot open until you price them.
- Open Decisions. Everything held for you, oldest first.

Through the day

- Clear rosters quickly. Talent cannot move until you do.
- Strike with a reason. The reason stops the repeat next month.
- Check the talent board on Rates: who is holding what, and what is late.

Before you log off

- Nothing has waited on you for more than a day.

Where your work sits

Nothing opens until you have priced it, and nothing leaves until you have cleared it. You are also the second pair of hands when Zain is away.

Your part

The screen you will live in

Drawn, not photographed, so it stays true when a button moves. The numbers are explained underneath.

1 Longest wait first. The top row is the campaign that has been stuck longest.

2 Every one of these is a client who has already said yes and cannot start.

3 Open one and put the real negotiated cost against each creator.

4 The margin moves as you type, before you commit anything.

5 When every creator has a rate, the campaign can be opened.

6 The talent board underneath: counts, never scores. Where the load is, not who is better.

Where things live

The menu down the left of the screen. This is all of it.

Today	What your day is made of
Decisions	Everything waiting on a decision from you
Requests	What clients and colleagues have asked for
Guide	What every screen is for
WORK
Pipeline	Every creator we owe something, and what happens next
Clients	The brands we run
Creators	The master database, with cost and sell pricing
Campaigns	Live work and where each creator has got to
Finance	In, out, and committed but unpaid

What you actually do

In order. The strip on each card is what to click, as you click it.

1 Clear a roster

When talent hands it up for review.

GO TO Creators › Rosters

1. Check each creator against the brief's budget.
2. Check they really live in the market the brief asked for.
3. Check engagement against follower count.
4. Check we have not used them for this brand recently.
5. Clear the ones that pass. Strike the rest with the reason.

✓ Next: Account management sends the cleared list to the client.

2 Price what talent has found

As soon as a cost is recorded.

GO TO Creators › Pending rates

1. Talent records what a creator charges us.
2. You set what we sell them for. Nobody else can.
3. Until you do, that creator cannot go on a quote.

3 Release money

When work is delivered and a payment is requested.

GO TO Finance › Approvals

1. Check the work actually landed before approving.
2. Check the creator has signed and given their own bank details.
3. Approve. Nothing pays out that the client has not funded.

✓ Next: The payment joins the next payout run.

4 Watch the shape of the week

Once a week is enough.

GO TO Admin › Company › Targets

1. Targets and progress for the whole team.
2. Quiet brands and overdue rosters reach you without looking.

Thirteen creators, one afternoon

One job, followed the whole way, with the real numbers.

Start to finish

OPEN	Minimalist confirmed three weeks ago. Thirteen creators, not one priced, and the campaign cannot open.
WHY	Nobody was chasing it because it lived inside one proposal's page. That is what this screen exists to stop.
PRICE	What we quoted is what we assumed. What we pay is what you negotiate. On the live Lago campaign one creator quoted 6,000 settled at 3,500.
WATCH	The margin updates as you type. You see the consequence of a number before you commit it.
DONE	Thirteen rates agreed, the campaign opens with a real margin instead of acquiring one later.
THEN	Aqsa raises the enrolment links. Each creator signs their own agreement and enters their own bank details. Nobody types a fee.

What good looks like

Everything on the right has actually happened here and cost us something.

✓ What good looks like

- Price what clients have already agreed to, before anything else in your day.
- Clear rosters fast. Talent genuinely cannot move until you do.
- Strike a creator with a reason written down. The reason stops the repeat next month.
- Check the talent board when you are allocating, not only when something has gone wrong.
- Use the quoted cost as a starting point, never as the answer.

× What has actually gone wrong

- Leaving a confirmed proposal unpriced. The client has said yes and is waiting on us.
- Opening a campaign and agreeing rates afterwards. You are then negotiating with somebody who has already started working.
- Approving a creator with no sell price. They cannot be sold, so they are not real.
- Letting a payment go out that the client has not funded.
- Reading the talent board as a scoreboard. It shows load, not quality.

Words we use

They mean something specific. A roster is not a list, and cost is not sell.

Brand
A company we are talking to. Becomes a client when a deal is won.

Client
A brand that has bought something. They have an account and can log in.

Deal
One conversation about money. A brand can have many, over years.

Campaign
A deal that was won and opened. Real creators, real money.

Roster
The creators sourced for one client. Has rounds, a brief and an owner.

List
A standing question: "fashion, UAE". Answers itself. Never client-specific.

Cost
What we pay a creator. Founders and talent only. Never shown to a brand.

Sell
What we charge a client. A creator with no sell price cannot be sold.

Quoted cost
What we assumed when pricing. Rarely what we end up paying.

Agreed rate
What a creator actually accepted. The only number that is real.

Request
Something somebody is waiting on, with an owner and a date.

Proposal
A priced roster sent to a client to choose from.

Share link
A /p/ link a client opens without logging in. Mint it, then send it.

Enrolment link
How a creator signs. They enter their own bank details; nobody types a fee.

The ladder
The rungs a booked creator climbs: briefed, content in, posted, paid.

Held
Stopped until a founder answers. Nothing has happened yet.

Rules that cost money

Each one has already cost us something.

- A creator the client should not see is your catch, not theirs.
- Always strike with a reason. No reason means it happens again next month.
- No payment goes out on work you have not confirmed landed.
- Working capital is an amount you approve in writing, never a general permission.

Every screen in the platform is explained under Guide in the menu. If something here does not match what you see, the product is right and this is out of date. Say so and it gets reprinted.

OPEN FIRST

- Rates. Clients who said yes and cannot start.
- Then Decisions.

THE ONE RULE

- Nothing opens until every creator has a real rate.

QUOTED IS NOT AGREED

- The quote is what we assumed. The rate is what you got.

NEVER

- Never pay out beyond what the client has funded.
- Never release a creator with no sell price.

WHEN ZAIN IS AWAY

- You are the second pair of hands. Everything of his comes to you.
